COTEAUX CHAMPENOIS

Is the Appellation for the unusual still wines of Champagne. For every bottle of white still Coteaux Champenois produced, about 20 of still red Coteaux Champenois are produced, in good vintages, and approximately 16000bottles of sparkling Champagne. The wines tend to be high in acidity, light and mineral, most of them will improve

Cramant, "Nature", Grand Cru 2008

SAVOIE

Savoie and Haute-Savoie are home to four different appellations contrôlées: Vin de Savoie, Roussette de Savoie, Seyssel for its sparkling wines, and Crépy. To make things slightly complicated, the more predominant of these, Vin de Savoie, which spans from the shores of Lake Geneva to beyond Chambéry, can be followed by the name of one of 16 crus, usually just the name of the village where the wine is produced. The same is true for the white Roussette de Savoie, made from the grape of the same name, which has four separate crus.
